

Curecrete Distribution, Inc. Names Roy Bowman as New Vice President of Product Engineering and Support

September 28, 2022

SPRINGVILLE, UT - Curecrete Distribution, Inc. President and CEO Scott Liggett has announced the appointment of Roy Bowman as Curecrete's Vice President of Product Engineering and Support, effective September 19, 2022. As a key member of Curecrete's Executive Team, Bowman is tasked with providing effective, in-depth technical support and training for all customers, representatives, applicators, and employees for Curecrete's line of products. He will also oversee Curecrete's R&D efforts, aimed at enhancing and developing existing and new industry relevant products.

"We are excited to have Roy join the Curecrete Team," Liggett said. "He joins us with a wealth of knowledge and experience, and we look forward to having him contribute to helping us achieve our goals."

Roy has extensive experience in the concrete flooring and maintenance industries - previously owning his own business, specializing in concrete surface preparation, polishing, and coatings for over 20 years. He has developed and implemented training and safety programs, been responsible for analyzing and improving the efficiency of key processes and created training and validation programs for concrete services spanning multiple national markets.

He has also served in various leadership positions and committees within the concrete flooring industry including as past President of the Concrete Polishing Association of America.

Roy is married to his wife Allison of 38 years, is the proud father of two sons and a doting grandfather to one grandchild. He enjoys bow hunting elk, perfecting his BBQ skills, and woodworking in his spare time.